“Millsaps has been an intellectual oasis in Mississippi for a long time—and has provided an inspiration to many of us. We are indebted to you, the students and faculty and alumni of Millsaps College.”

William Winter, former governor of Mississippi
Behind the energy of Millsaps, behind the motion and the spirit, is a core of contemplation that unites us.

From the carrels in the libraries to the shadows on the lawns, this is a place where reflection is a virtue—where quiet pursuit of an idea is the bedrock that we build on.

Be a restless, positive force in the world.

Advance science and medicine.
Build community partnerships.
Shape the future of business.
Join the next generation of thinkers and doers.
Guided by a collective sense of purpose and will to action, the people of Millsaps College CREATE CHANGE AND TRANSFORM LIVES …

From many places and points of view, Millsaps students come together and make each other better. They share ideas and opinions. They support one another in triumph and in failure. They collaborate. They celebrate.

Working closely with local Maya, Millsaps students excavate the ruins of Kiuic, the oldest known settlement in the Puuc region of Mexico’s Yucatán peninsula.
Across the street and around the globe, Millsaps students bring energy and purpose to their learning.
Millsaps students choose their own paths, propelled by individual interests and goals. Whatever their major, they gain a common set of powerful, portable skills. Guided by teachers and mentors who know them well, they are elevated by countless opportunities to put ideas in motion.
UNIQUE EXPERIENCES. SHARED RESULTS.

► MILLSAPS BALANCES STRUCTURE AND FREEDOM. Through broad exploration of the humanities, sciences, social sciences, and business, students pursue individualized academic programs, gaining exposure to new disciplines, new points of view, and new possibilities. While building a solid base of knowledge in one (or more) of our 32 majors, they learn to integrate ideas across disciplines.

► ALL STUDENTS GAIN A BODY OF USEFUL SKILLS: critical reasoning, historical consciousness, creative thinking, teamwork, social and cultural awareness, and—perhaps most important of all—the ability to write with clarity and confidence.

► THESE ABILITIES DISTINGUISH OUR GRADUATES, allowing them to succeed in any context—and to be nimble and flexible as contexts inevitably change.

“The classes here are so small. Every year, I’ve gotten close to at least one professor. And this is invaluable when you’re applying for jobs later on—the networking.”

Jasmeet Kaur, senior
At Millsaps, Every Course is Taught at the Honors Level.

Professors expect students to actively participate in their educations. As a result, students know and are known by their teachers—not as names on a list but as people with unique backgrounds and learning styles.

Our academic culture ensures that students receive plenty of individual attention from professors—such as extra help on a paper or an after-class conversation on a topic of shared interest. These relationships give students the courage to take intellectual risks, discover new passions, and dream of the possibilities that lie ahead.

The women and men of the Millsaps faculty share a dedication—to their students and to their own learning.

TEACHERS. SCHOLARS. MENTORS.

The experiences I’ve had at Millsaps are in many ways superior to what undergraduates at other colleges get—because our professors are so focused on us as individuals.

Originally planning on majoring in science, Jordan found a passion for music at Millsaps, inspired by his professor and mentor Cheryl Coker. Last fall, the two traveled together to Florence, where Jordan drew high praise from a master class teacher for his superb vocal technique. A choral conducting internship this fall at Dr. Coker’s church in Jackson has solidified Jordan’s plans to pursue music in graduate school.

A Comprehensive Education

Part graduation requirement, part rite of passage, every Millsaps senior must take—and pass—written and oral comprehensive exams in his or her major. Students say “comps” are an opportunity to make sure they have mastered their discipline before beginning their careers. Alumni praise the experience for distinguishing them in grad school and the workplace.
There may be no skill more useful than the ability to write well. It is among the top attributes cited by employers when asked what they look for in hiring, and it is a reliable predictor of professional success. Every Millsaps student learns how to write. Professors from across the curriculum—from math to physics to business—teach and prioritize writing. Through such instruction, students sharpen their understanding and articulate their ideas in every discipline.

Supported by faculty and peer writing tutors, each student builds a portfolio of papers in a range of subjects. As a result, students graduate as confident, experienced communicators. They are well prepared for graduate school and stand out in the workplace.

“I’m repeatedly told that Millsaps graduates can write. People want to hire them because they know that they can write.”

Anita DeRouen, Assistant Professor of English

MILLSAPS RANKING NATIONALLY IN THE 2013 PRINCETON REVIEW “PROFESSORS GET HIGH MARKS” CATEGORY:

12

PERCENT OF FIRST-YEARS WHO SAY MILLSAPS PROVIDES SUBSTANTIAL SUPPORT FOR THEIR ACADEMIC SUCCESS:

97
LEADING RESEARCHERS, POWERFUL GRANT SUPPORT, IMPRESSIVE FACILITIES, AND THE RESOURCES OF A CAPITAL CITY: MILLSAPS HAS ALL THE KEY INGREDIENTS OF DISCOVERY.

► MILLSAPS PROFESSORS ARE ACTIVE MEMBERS OF THEIR DISCIPLINES, making important contributions through research and scholarship. If undergraduates want to get involved, all they have to do is ask.

► STUDENTS OF ANY MAJOR WORK ALONGSIDE THEIR PROFESSORS to formulate questions and find solutions—whether researching intercultural communications or exploring the causes of post-traumatic stress disorder. Professors share their grant funding to support student involvement.

► THE COLLEGE’S OWN LABS AND LIBRARIES ARE JUST THE BEGINNING. Jackson’s hospitals, government offices, archives, museums, libraries, neighborhoods, and community organizations all provide opportunities for students to apply what they’re learning to real-world settings—solidifying their understanding through practical experience.

Leaders in Medical and Scientific Research

A testament to the College’s preeminence in preparing students for health professions, Millsaps recently received $1.4 million from the Howard Hughes Medical Institute to fund student/faculty research and mentorship in the sciences, enhance the pre-medical curriculum, and support science education for all students.

The College is literally across the street from the University of Mississippi Medical Center (and extremely close to five other partner hospitals), which means many opportunities for students in the sciences to get experience working in a lab with a PhD or MD.
“Freshman year, my professor noticed me and asked me to join his research group. At a bigger school, that would never have happened. It has opened up so many opportunities.”

PERCENT OF MILLSAPS CHEMISTRY STUDENTS WHO DO RESEARCH:

80–85

“We get students engaged in honest-to-goodness research as undergraduates—producing, publishing, and presenting on the same stage as graduate students and professors.”

Julian Murchison, Associate Professor of Anthropology and Sociology

GET READY FOR THE BIG STAGE

RYAN CLARK, SENIOR | Tchula, Mississippi | neuroscience

From the small town of Tchula, Ryan Clark came to Millsaps for pre-med studies and quickly discovered a passion for neuroscience. Professor Melissa Lea connected Ryan with a research lab at the University of Mississippi Medical Center. After two semesters and a summer exploring the effect of serotonin on autism, Ryan was first author on a poster he presented to 30,000 neuroscientists at the world’s largest neuroscience conference. Ryan’s future plans are focused on medical school.

“The research has changed me as a person. I’ve come to see that learning coupled with application allows for much better understanding.”

“Sorry year, my professor noticed me and asked me to join his research group. At a bigger school, that would never have happened. It has opened up so many opportunities.”

Syed Ali, junior

Rare Opportunity

Student researchers in the College’s Keck Center for Instrumental and Biochemical Comparative Archaeology (the only undergraduate lab of its kind in the country) use sophisticated equipment to analyze artifacts and get a glimpse into the cultures of the ancient world.

For students seeking careers in medical fields, Wiener Pre-Medical Summer Research Fellowships support eight weeks of summer research with Millsaps faculty.

Physics and mathematics major Michael Bell spent a summer working alongside some of the world’s finest theoretical physicists at The National Institute for Sub-Atomic Physics in Amsterdam.

Presenting alongside professors and PhD students at the Rocky Mountain Communication Association conference, communication studies major Allie Jordan took home the top undergraduate award for her paper “Heaven? Hell? Reincarnation? Nothing?: Mourning Processes, Community Structures, Public Grief, and Identity on Facebook.”
BUSINESS SMARTS. LIBERAL ARTS SAVVY.
A POWERFUL COMBINATION.

MILLSAPS’ ELSE SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT EQUIPS TOMORROW’S BUSINESS LEADERS WITH A RIGOROUS PROFESSIONAL FOUNDATION. But unlike traditional business students, they prepare for their profession while taking nearly half their classes in the sciences, humanities, and social sciences.

AT THE SAME TIME, MANY LIBERAL ARTS MAJORS TAKE COURSES AT ELSE, contributing their opinions and insights to the business classroom. This overlap benefits the entire Millsaps community and produces graduates with unique perspectives—accountants familiar with the history of economic theory, executives with a grounding in literature and philosophy, and doctors who know the business dimensions of health care.

AS A RESULT, MILLSAPS GRADUATES HIT THE WORKFORCE WITH A RARE BALANCE OF HARD SKILLS AND INTELLECTUAL TOOLS—everything they need to thrive in the constantly evolving business landscape.

A Powerful Faculty
Holders of PhD’s, JD’s, and DBA’s, and consultants to major corporations, health care firms, government agencies, and non-profit organizations, the 14 men and women of the Else faculty bring decades of practical, teaching, and research experience to the classroom.

PUT YOUR KNOWLEDGE TO GOOD USE

JENNIFER GOEBEL, SENIOR
Dallas, TX | double major in business administration and communications

Jennifer Goebel knows business. At age 16 she started her own company. As a Millsaps junior, she traveled to Liechtenstein to study international business and social entrepreneurship. In her senior year, she partnered with Midtown resident STACEY WINTERS as business advisor, manager, mentor, and consultant. The two transformed Soul Wired Café into a thriving community hotspot, a solid head start toward Jennifer’s goal of a career in social entrepreneurship.
Our students are scholars and citizens. What they learn here is valuable to others. Millsaps makes it possible for them to take their knowledge from the classroom to the neighborhoods of Jackson, from the lab to local hospitals, and from the drawing board to the Mississippi Delta.
THIS IS THE PLACE TO BE.
THIS IS THE NEW
Jackson

► MISSISSIPPI’S STATE CAPITAL—HUB OF GOVERNMENT, COMMERCE, AND CULTURE—Jackson is a nexus for talented people who want to work together, whether they are looking for the next big thing or for an opportunity to contribute.

► JACKSON HAS BEEN NAMED ONE OF THE COUNTRY’S BEST COMMUNITIES FOR YOUNG PEOPLE. Socially networked, dynamic, and affordable, it’s a great place to go to college and launch a career. Jackson is a city on the move—a place of opportunity that’s always getting better.

METROPOLITAN JACKSON POPULATION: 539,000

CITY WITH SOUL
A major player in the history of American gospel, blues, and soul, Jackson offers lively music, a welcoming arts community, energetic neighborhoods, and a booming restaurant scene.

NEIGHBORHOOD CHARM
Now famous as the setting of the critically acclaimed movie The Help, nearby Fondren is funky, artsy, and welcoming—full of great restaurants, galleries, boutiques, and coffee shops.

Come visit
Getting here is easy. Jackson is served by five major airlines and is just down the road from Birmingham, Memphis, and New Orleans. For Millsaps students—who inevitably fall in love with the place—it’s leaving that’s hard.
INTERNSHIPS

Millsaps students get real-world experience while contributing to their community through internships in local hospitals, nonprofits, schools, social service agencies, religious organizations, and small businesses.

“Because of where we are in the capital, the economic center of the state, there are opportunities across all disciplines to get involved in high-level, prestigious strategic partnerships in the community—in ways that are potentially transformative.”

David Culpepper, Professor of Accounting

MILLSAPS OCCUPIES 100 ACRES NEAR THE HEART OF JACKSON, but its influence is felt far beyond campus. Through internships and community outreach, students in every major lend their ideas and expertise to organizations, agencies, and businesses throughout the region—gaining professional perspectives, improving their world, and learning what it means to be part of a community.

COMMUNITY ENGAGED LEARNING

Whether improving literacy, fighting poverty, or revitalizing Jackson’s neighborhoods, Millsaps students give freely of their time.

“Community engaged learning is not just volunteering or serving the community or developing career skills. Students learn that their careers should include service and engagement and community awareness. They’re inextricable.”

Stephanie Rolph, Assistant Professor of History

Community Engaged Learning Courses

Every semester, Millsaps students—guided by their professors—break down classroom walls by combining learning with community outreach. Here are a few examples:

- ART SENIOR SEMINAR AND STUDIO ART
  Creating interpretive reference guides for Fondren gallery patrons.

- HUMAN RESOURCES MANAGEMENT
  Engaging with leaders of Jackson nonprofits to learn management techniques.

- IMMIGRANT EXPERIENCES IN THE UNITED STATES
  Tutoring Sudanese refugees and documenting their experiences.

- FIELD RESEARCH IN READING
  Applying intervention strategies to improve literacy among at-risk elementary students.

- HUMAN DEVELOPMENT IN CROSS-CULTURAL PERSPECTIVE
  Volunteering at organizations serving human development needs while assessing and sharing their experiences.

- INTRODUCTION TO RELIGIOUS STUDIES
  Exploring world religions, and then teaching local high school students what they’ve learned.

- HISTORY AND SYSTEMS
  Linking theory and practice by designing a service placement with a community partner of their choosing.

- ISLAMIC MOVEMENTS
  Working with a community organizer to educate local communities about Islam.
GET EXPERIENCE AND GET HIRED.

► MILLSAPS GRADUATES SUCCEED because they’ve backed up classroom learning with powerful experiences while making valuable connections. Our capital city location makes it possible for students in any course of study to find an internship that relates to their major or career field.

Medical Internships

Jackson is Mississippi’s health care center. Six partner hospitals and dozens of private practices near campus mean extraordinary opportunities for pre-med students to get a career jump-start by working side-by-side with health care professionals. These experiences get noticed in med school applications, where Millsaps students enjoy an acceptance rate more than twice the national average.

Business Internships

Else student interns log significant professional experience—in accounting firms, small businesses, and nonprofit organizations throughout Jackson. Made possible by close relationships between Else faculty and local business leaders—many of whom are Millsaps grads—these experiences create opportunities for networking and often lead to job offers.

PERCENT OF STUDENTS WHO HAVE FOR-CREDIT INTERNSHIP OR FIELDWORK EXPERIENCE: 75

Government/Political Internships

As Mississippi’s capital city, Jackson offers a front-row glimpse into policy making, government, and advocacy. Whether clerking at the Mississippi Senate or contributing to casework at the Southern Poverty Law Center, Millsaps students distinguish their résumés with hands-on experience.

“‘We have a huge advantage in being across the street from the med school, and having close relationships between our faculty and their staff. Few colleges enjoy this type of relationship, and almost none of our size have the potential for this kind of impact.’”

Tim Ward
Associate Dean of the Sciences and Professor of Chemistry
COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT IS IN THE MILLSAPS DNA.

MILLSAPS STUDENTS TAKE WHAT THEY LEARN AND PASS IT ON TO OTHERS, seeing how quickly small changes can add up to big ones. There are many ways to get involved—through course work, an ElseWorks project, or with a sports team, to name a few opportunities. Many who chose Millsaps for other reasons discover a new passion for community engagement. It’s just one of the many ways that Millsaps changes who they are and how they look at the world.

1 Campus 1 Community (1C1C)
Through this program, the people of Millsaps build long-term partnerships with schools and organizations throughout Jackson.

Challenge
Millsaps students get involved before classes even start through this unique orientation program that connects students with opportunities for service and engagement throughout Jackson.

Community Engaged Learning Courses
Students enhance their classroom learning through projects with community partners in Jackson. (See page 17 for examples).

Wellspring
These first- and second-year students share a residence hall, volunteer together, and convene regularly to reflect on what they’ve learned and experienced.

Volunteerism
Whether sponsored by student-run service clubs, athletic teams, Greek organizations, or the Office of the Chaplain, service happens daily throughout the Millsaps community.

FROM OUR METHODIST ROOTS TO OUR PROGRESSIVE SPIRIT, PERCENT OF MILLSAPS STUDENTS WHO PARTICIPATE IN COMMUNITY SERVICE OR VOLUNTEER WORK: 84

Historic Gift
In 2012, Millsaps received a $1 million donation to fund research and community-based learning projects for students in the history department.
IMPROVE THE WORLD WITHOUT LEAVING CAMPUS

JEAN LEON IRAGENA, JUNIOR
Kigali, Rwanda | Applied Mathematics and Economics

Aiming to advance child literacy in his native Rwanda, Millsaps junior Jean Leon Iragena started the nonprofit Isaro Foundation with the help of Millsaps alum KEN BLACKWELL. In less than a year, Isaro has distributed 8,000 books to Rwandan schools and libraries, provided 30 Kindles to establish the country’s first e-library, and inspired partnerships with like-minded organizations across the country and world.

“My professors are also my friends, and everyone who has taught me has contributed to Isaro in one way or another—giving advice, donating books, and encouraging me.”

European Business Program
Each summer, a group of Else students spends five weeks traveling and studying business throughout Europe. Learning closely with Millsaps professors, they explore financial services in London, manufacturing in Munich, and history and art in Florence.

AROUND THE GLOBE

Preparing for leadership in tomorrow’s world means getting a close look at how today’s world works. About half of Millsaps’ students study off campus—sharpening language skills, building cultural fluency, and making connections that literally span the globe.

STUDY ABROAD IS A LITTLE DIFFERENT HERE.

▶ MILLSAPS STUDENTS TRAVEL ABROAD TOGETHER IN SMALL GROUPS for 3-6 weeks of intensive study and exploration, guided by Millsaps professors who know them well and have a vested interest in their educations.

▶ HANDS-ON AND IMMERSIVE, these experiences connect students with people and communities around the world.

▶ THESE TRIPS ARE DRIVEN BY GENUINE FACULTY INTEREST. Whether exploring sociology in China or international law in Yucatán, students are often invited to participate in ongoing scholarship and research.
Following their passions, Millsaps professors take their students around the world. A few examples:

As part of his ongoing research, biology professor (and renowned spider expert) Brent Hendrixson regularly takes small groups of students on funded trips to the deserts of Arizona and California to hunt for tarantulas.

Classics department chair Holly Sypniewski guides students throughout Italy, using Rome and Sorrento as bases for further travel and exploration of Roman society and civilization.

For the past 17 summers, Spanish professor Robert Khan has led groups of students to San José, Costa Rica, for cultural and language immersion, travel, and learning through direct interactions with local schools and service agencies.

Other Recent Travel Courses:

- Black Star Rising: Ghana and the Making of Modern Africa
- Field Biology in the Ecuadorian Andes
- Global Business in Latin America
- Greek Civilization Field Studies
- History and Archaeology of Ancient "Israel"
- The History and Psychology of Food (London/Paris)
- International Sports Economics (Florence/Munich)
- Poetry, Painting, and Paris
- Summer in China
- Vietnam: More than Just a War
CULTURAL IMMERSION. INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS. ARCHAEOLOGY. ADVENTURE.

THERE’S SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE IN YUCATÁN.

A ONE-OF-A-KIND RESOURCE, the College’s programs in Yucatán, Mexico, offer experiential and interdisciplinary learning opportunities that span archaeology, business, education, ecology, geology, history, literature, and socio-cultural anthropology. Whether excavating ancient ruins, touring modern-day factories, or working with indigenous populations, Millsaps students apply what they’ve learned in Jackson while making discoveries and impacting lives in a very different corner of the globe.

Learning International Business

Whether studying subsistence farming on the Helen Moyers Reserve, industrial development in Merida, or the social and economic impact of tourism in Cancún, Else School of Management students experience the economic development of an emerging modern economy.

Engaging Contemporary Questions

▲ While traveling throughout the cities and rainforests of Yucatán, students of any major delve into such topics as colonialist literature, Mexican art and architecture, alternative spiritual practices, and the intersection of media and tourism.

Exploring Ancient Civilizations

▲ Millsaps students do cutting-edge anthropological fieldwork at a major Mayan site that dates back to 400 BC, exploring the bedrock of an ancient civilization while immersed in the culture of the modern-day Maya. Collaborating with classmates in Jackson, students take artifacts back to Millsaps to be analyzed in the College’s innovative Keck Lab (see page 11).
“This is intense experiential learning. I think my students learned more in 18 days here than they would have in 15 weeks in the classroom.”

Curtis Coats, Professor of Communications

BUILD BRIDGES BETWEEN CULTURES.

RICHARD BOOKER, SENIOR | Savannah, GA | business administration

While traveling in Yucatán with an Else professor, Richard connected with DIEGO NUNEZ, the owner of a small nature tour company—who invited him to spend six weeks in the town of Rio Lagartos teaching English to his staff. While there, Richard also helped with marketing strategy, working with Diego to adapt the company’s operations and business plan to the expectations and sensibility of American tourists.

“In addition to dramatically improving my Spanish, I learned how much people really have to think outside their culture in order to do business on a global scale.”
Millsaps students aren’t just smart. They’re also involved, and often in pursuit of more than one interest. They are ambitious and eager and share a sense that they’ve barely scratched the surface.

WITH OUR FRIENDS
“Everyone here is memorable in some way. Everyone has a chance to make an impact.”

THE OTHER SIDE OF WORKING HARD

► MILLSAPS POURS ENERGY, IDEAS, AND RESOURCES INTO PROVIDING STUDENTS WITH A FULL SLATE OF FUN OPTIONS.

From major events to visiting speakers and artists to community-wide celebrations of diversity and culture, the Millsaps campus is constantly alive. At every step, students are guided by a caring administrative staff that offers resources and support—ensuring that every person has a place and every idea has a chance to succeed.

► CATERING TO STUDENT INTERESTS FROM ARTS TO CULTURE TO POLITICS, Millsaps clubs and organizations give students the opportunity to meet people, try new things, and see what it takes to be a leader. The list is an incomplete snapshot of what our students are thinking and doing—and a glimpse into what they might become.

HAVE YOUR CAKE AND EAT IT, TOO.

RAVEN SCOTT, SENIOR | Boutte, LA | anthropology

Raven chose Millsaps for the chance to study liberal arts and business while also playing volleyball at a high level. Seeking new experiences, she discovered a love of anthropology, studied abroad in Tanzania and Costa Rica, and held two internships. All the while, Raven has excelled on the volleyball court, earning first-team All-Conference honors and leading her team to a 2nd place conference finish. She will begin her career as a teacher in the Jackson Public School system and one day hopes to start her own nonprofit.

“My teammates have been my support group, my best friends, and lifelines. My coach is a witness to the fact that volleyball has helped me grow as a leader and teammate.”

MAJOR COMPETITION. MAJOR SUCCESS.

Go Majors!
PROUDLY SPORTING THE PURPLE AND WHITE, the Millsaps Majors’ 18 varsity sports teams compete in the Southern Athletic Association (SAA).

THE MAJORS COMPETE IN THE NCAA DIVISION III, which means athletes play at a high level while getting a stellar education and doing all the other things they love—whether studying abroad, doing an internship, or joining a student organization.

STRONG ACROSS ALL SPORTS, Millsaps teams regularly contend for conference championships and are competitive at the national level. The 2013 baseball team went to the College World Series, and the 2008 football team earned a #12 national ranking. In terms of win/loss percentage, the women’s athletic program had its best season in school history in 2011-2012.

MILLSAPS HAS WON THE HALBROOK AWARD AS THE MISSISSIPPI COLLEGE OR UNIVERSITY WITH THE highest STUDENT-ATHLETE GRADUATION RATE 18 OF THE LAST 24 YEARS.

Just for Fun
For the casual dabbler or off-season varsity athlete, Millsaps fields a handful of intramural sports teams. From basketball to flag football to intramural Olympics, there’s something for every taste and level of intensity.
ENJOYING THE GOOD LIFE

► WITH WIDE-OPEN SPACES AND A 100-ACRE FOOTPRINT, the Millsaps campus is an ideal blend of roomy and intimate. Students work and play surrounded by good friends in a comfortable, convenient oasis of green. For a campus in a city, Millsaps is safe and free of urban hassles. Walking from any dorm to any class doesn’t take more than five minutes.

First-Year Foundation

First-year students get off to a strong start. Living together and sharing early experiences, they are guided by resident advisors who offer advice and answer questions. All first-years take Foundations, a semester-long course that pairs them with older students who help them learn the basics of how to survive—and thrive—at Millsaps. It’s no surprise that 77 percent of students return for their sophomore year.
ABOUT HALF OF MILLSAPS STUDENTS join one of the College’s 10 fraternities and sororities. Blending social life, academics, service, and philanthropy, Greek life at Millsaps is friendly, open, and dedicated to building character and fellowship. Anyone who is interested in joining a fraternity or sorority is welcome to participate in recruitment. And anyone who doesn’t can still be part of the fun.

Don’t take our word for it
In the past few years, the good work of Millsaps’ Greek community has been recognized at the national level. Millsaps boasts:

The country’s top Order of Omega scholarship recipient

The 3rd runner-up for Tri Delta’s Sarah Ida Shaw award (recognizing the country’s top four undergraduates)

One of 14 undergraduates nationwide to serve on Lambda Chi Alpha’s national Student Advisory Committee

The 3 Star Award for Delta Delta Delta—one of just two winners among 138 chapters nationwide
Ask our alumni how they feel about their time on campus, and chances are you’ll hear some version of the same four words: Millsaps changed my life.

After four years in this dynamic, entrepreneurial learning community, our students are ready—for success in their careers, for meaningful leadership in their communities, and for lives enriched by truly open minds.
“Millsaps wants us to think through issues and be ourselves, to learn how to find solutions to problems when they arise. It’s changed my worldview for sure, and the way I handle situations has changed. The way I look at people is a lot more open-minded now.”

Jenna Johnson, sophomore

“My work ethic has definitely changed since I came here. When I volunteer, when I go to work, I don’t want to just be there. I want to make a difference.”

Samantha Perez, sophomore

“Millsaps has long been known for its intellectual and moral leadership in the city and state. It was an ‘honors college’ well before those words were used by our fine public universities to designate specialized programs on their campuses.”

Dr. Rob Pearigen, President

“Millsaps is a graduate-level education disguised as an undergraduate experience. We can take a student who might not be at the honors level coming in and prepare that student to compete at the Ivy League level.”

Dr. Keith Dunn, Dean of the College

“Everything’s so intertwined at Millsaps, and I think this is a really important part of springboarding me into the next chapter of my life. Now I see how connected everything is to everything else.”

Katie Wilson, senior

“The faculty gives us the chance to add and contribute to the learning experience, quite literally. This is empowering in the sense that we feel like we have ownership, but we also see a faculty that is still learning and see that we’re probably going to be learning for the rest of our lives.”

Jayson Porter, senior

“I chose Millsaps because I could see myself writing, thinking, and, in general, growing here. And that’s exactly what I’ve done.”

Katie Greer, senior

► STUDENTS COME TO MILLSAPS WITH POTENTIAL AND GRADUATE WITH THE ESSENTIAL INGREDIENTS OF SUCCESS: a broad base of knowledge, a wealth of meaningful experiences, a set of powerful skills, a strong ethical mindset, and the confidence of knowing that their world can be whatever they choose to make it.
CLOSE GUIDANCE. GREAT DESTINATIONS.

► AT MILSAPS, CAREER PREPARATION BEGINS IN THE FIRST SEMESTER, as students craft their first college papers, learn to defend ideas in freshman seminars, and begin to exercise parts of their minds they never knew existed.

► GUIDANCE IS AVAILABLE AT EVERY STEP. Professors help students select courses, choose majors, find internships, and think toward careers. Professional career counselors offer dozens of career-related events, one-on-one guidance, and help with shaping résumés, preparing for mock interviews, and applying for national fellowships.

► THE BOTTOM LINE: Millsaps students (and alumni) have powerful resources to ensure that their knowledge and experience translates into opportunity.

Major Networking
The Major Mentors program connects current students and recent graduates with alumni volunteers for mentorship, career guidance, and professional insight.
IF YOU MEET A MILLSAPS ALUM, ask about his or her story. We’re guessing that somewhere along the line, there will be a twist: a change of plans, a new direction, an unexpected discovery. Regardless of how the story begins, the end will likely sound like this: I’m doing what I love while making a difference in the world.

KENNETH TOWNSEND grew up in a trailer at the end of a dirt road outside of Kosciusko, MS. As a college senior, he was named a Rhodes Scholar—and credited Millsaps for an education that gave him a powerful sense of how ideas connect to problems in the real world. Since graduating with a double major in English and political science, Kenneth has made stops at the U.S. Department of Education, Oxford University, Ole Miss Honors College, and Yale—before returning to Millsaps to combine his dual passions for higher education and the state of Mississippi.

“You can find a lot of colleges that push you, and others where you can feel really comfortable. Millsaps offers the rare opportunity to be pushed while being nurtured. This allows for the possibility of transformation.”

VANDANA VEDANARYAYANAN, MD, chose Millsaps for its welcoming feel and excellent pre-medical offerings. But then she took a literature class and surprised herself by majoring in English and minoring in history—while still completing her pre-med requirements. Vandana bolstered her résumé by shadowing physicians and volunteering at the University of Mississippi Medical Center, experiences that prepared her to get the most out of medical school. Now ready to begin her residency, Vandana credits Millsaps for broadening her perspectives and giving her the opportunity to explore all of her interests.

“At a lot of other colleges, pursuing two completely different fields is next to impossible. At Millsaps, the hardest part was running from one side of campus to the other.”

“I’ve been so impressed with the alumni at Millsaps. I know quite a few, and it seems like everybody is continuing to move forward. It doesn’t end after four years.” Kate Aten ’15

When a Millsaps business professor arranged an internship with a sewing factory in Merida, Mexico, the Spanish department recommended SARAH HARTZOG. The experience started a chain reaction. She declared a double-major in accounting and Spanish, spent another summer interning in Merida, and won a Fulbright to spend a year working and studying in Mexico City. Ready to begin her career, Sarah weighed a number of offers before opting to continue her interest in manufacturing with a startup division of Halliburton.

“I’m almost always the youngest person in the room, but I’m holding my own. Millsaps gave me a strong enough foundation in business and the liberal arts to take each day as it comes and solve whatever problem comes my way.”

As a Millsaps student, EAMONN COTTRELL ’12 worked mornings at nearby Cups Espresso Café while studying business concepts in the afternoons. The overlap was apparent. In the winter of his senior year, Eamonn was promoted to Cups’ Financial Officer and Director of Operations, overseeing inventory management and supplier relations for 11 locations. But that’s just his day job. Eamonn’s other passions involve podcasting (he’s created three), writing a young adult novel (to be serialized via Kindle next year), learning classical music, and taking online courses to keep feeding his brain.

“I learned a lot about advanced corporate finance and entrepreneurial finance at Millsaps and have been able to incorporate a lot of that into the budgets and forecasts I’ve created and implemented at Cups.”
BEFORE YOU APPLY

► WE'RE LOOKING FOR STUDENTS who are restless but focused, ambitious but not ruthless, open-minded but not gullible. Students who expect a great deal of themselves while giving freely to others. Students who see opportunities everywhere and who are never content with “good enough.” Students who believe that college is not a fixed set of requirements but a series of possibilities that build on one another toward lives of excitement and deep meaning.

APPLYING

There are two ways to apply online:

► Complete Millsaps’ streamlined online application for admission, available on our website
► Select Millsaps College when you complete the Common Application online

Both options require an essay, high school transcript, teacher recommendation, and official test scores (ACT or SAT). Students for whom English is a second language should submit results from the TOEFL or IELTS. High school applicants must submit the Secondary School Report, and transfer applicants must submit the College Official’s Report.

Millsaps has waived all application fees.

CONSIDER A VISIT

► THE HEART OF MILLSAPS isn’t found on paper or online. Most students tell us they knew they belonged here the moment they stepped on campus.

► IF YOU’RE CURIOUS ABOUT MILLSAPS, we suggest you plan a visit. Stay overnight if you have the time. We’ll show you around. We’ll talk about your interests and goals. We’ll invite you to sit in on a class, have lunch at the Caf, and meet with a professor or coach.

► A VISIT TO MILLSAPS ISN’T COMPLETE without getting a sense of this great city our students call home. If possible, leave time to explore Jackson. Browse galleries in Fondren, attend a Mississippi Symphony concert, hike in LeFleur’s Bluff State Park, or visit the Old Capitol Museum.

To sign up for one of our big campus visit days, see when we might be in your area, or schedule a personalized visit, go to:

Types of Aid

There are two types of aid at Millsaps. Merit-based aid rewards exemplary academic achievement. Need-based aid closes the gap between what families can afford and the price of Millsaps.

Merit Aid

Millsaps offers a range of scholarships that recognize excellence in academics, leadership, music, theatre, business, and other areas. These scholarships are awarded without regard for financial need.

Need-Based Aid

Need-based aid packages include Millsaps and federal grants and loans to make a Millsaps education affordable for students from all financial backgrounds.

millsaps.edu/finaid

Price Versus Sticker Price

While it’s true that state universities have a lower price tag, they can’t always offer the types of experiences available at Millsaps—small classes, close relationships with faculty, and opportunities for medical internships and research partnerships, to name a few. Every class at Millsaps is taught at the honors level. In this environment of challenge and support, students gain the skills and connections that translate into incredible value.

Plus, given the generosity of our scholarships and financial aid, the difference between a state university and Millsaps might not be as much as you think. Millsaps might even cost less. Read on.

Net Price Calculator

This book should give you a sense of what a Millsaps education is worth. But what will it actually cost? Our easy-to-use Net Price Calculator takes into account your financial situation and academic background to calculate what merit and need-based aid you might be eligible for from Millsaps.

Note: the Calculator provides estimates for new, full-time, degree-seeking undergraduates only.

► WE DEVOTE CONSIDERABLE ENERGY AND RESOURCES to making sure you can afford Millsaps.

► WHY? Because we’re better when the best students are here in our classrooms.

► THE EVIDENCE: More than 90 percent of the most recent class received financial assistance of some kind.
THE BASICS

HISTORY
Founded in 1890 by Major Reuben Webster Millsaps, the College has a historical affiliation with the United Methodist Church.

ACCOLADES
► Nationally, Millsaps ranks among the top 100 liberal arts colleges according to U.S. News & World Report in 2013.
► CEO Magazine ranks the Else School of Management MBA program among the top 20 in North America.
► In the Princeton Review's Best Colleges, Millsaps recently ranked 12th for “Professors Get High Marks” and 18th for “Town & Gown Relations.”
► Millsaps is among 21 private universities and colleges nationwide named a “Best Buy” by the Fiske 2013 Guide to Colleges.

CAMPUS
Covering 100 beautiful acres in the heart of Jackson, the Millsaps campus centers around the tree-lined “Bowl,” where students gather for quiet study and spirited play.

STUDENTS
Millsaps is home to 985 students from 26 states and 23 countries. Fifty-nine percent come from outside Mississippi.

FACULTY
Among our faculty of 97 teacher/scholars, 94 percent hold the highest degree in their fields.

CLASSROOM
The student-to-teacher ratio is 9 to 1; the average class size is 14.

HONOR CODE
Affirming the principles of academic honesty, Millsaps’ cherished Honor Code creates a learning environment of mutual trust and respect.

WRITING
Every Millsaps student learns to write well—a valued skill in any profession—as a result of our nationally recognized writing program, which begins freshman year and culminates in a reflective senior-year essay.

RESIDENTIAL LIFE
Seventy percent of students live on campus. Roughly half are affiliated with one of the College’s 10 national Greek organizations.

AFTER MILLSAPS
The result of an education that combines broad learning with powerful experiences and relevant skills, our graduates find early success—whether heading to graduate school or the workplace. Among recent classes, 89 percent were employed or pursuing a higher degree within six months of graduation. Within a year, the figure is nearly 100 percent.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES
Students share their interests and passions through 80 organizations that span academic, professional, cultural, religious, creative, and recreational pursuits.

ATHLETICS
Millsaps fields 18 NCAA Division III teams in the Southern Athletic Association, including recent conference champions in football, baseball, and softball.

FINANCIAL AID
Millsaps offers two kinds of aid—scholarships based on academic merit and need-based grants for students whose families require assistance in meeting college costs. More than 80 percent of incoming students receive some type of aid from the College. In 2012-2013, the average financial aid package for students with demonstrated need was $31,863.

Students who wish to be considered for need-based aid must submit the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) by March 1. Early Action applicants who wish to receive an estimated financial aid package in January may submit the CSS PROFILE using school code 1471.

Behind the energy of Millsaps, behind the motion and the spirit, is a core of contemplation that unites us.

From the carrels in the libraries to the shadows on the lawns, this is a place where reflection is a virtue—where quiet pursuit of an idea is the bedrock that we build on.

Be a restless, positive force in the world.

Advance science and medicine.
Build community partnerships.
Shape the future of business.
Join the next generation of thinkers and doers.
“Millsaps has been an intellectual oasis in Mississippi for a long time—and has provided an inspiration to many of us. We are indebted to you, the students and faculty and alumni of Millsaps College.”

William Winter, former governor of Mississippi
